The inspections, held in the old Hermann Lumber Co. building at Main and Massachusetts, are limited to 1964 or newer cars and are conducted on a voluntary basis with no obligation on the part of the owner to correct any defects that are found. The inspections will continue Monday through Friday until 290 vehicles have been inspected. The checks take about 25 minutes each.

McCord Denies Any Jail Evasion Request

WASHINGTON (AP) — Watergate conspirator James W. McCord Jr. today denied to Senate investigators that he had tried to persuade the White House to keep him out of jail.

He admitted sending an unsigned letter last December to former White House aide John J. Caulfield threatening that "every tree in the forest will fall, there will be a scorched desert..."

But he said the threat was meant to apply only if the Central Intelligence Agency were falsely blamed for the Watergate wiretapping.

"The letter...did not contain any message requesting any contact with Caulfield, nor any request for the White House to get me out of the case, or off the case. I in fact sought no such contact at any time," McCord testified.

McCord also conceded that he had deliberately made two telephone calls to foreign embassies in Washington in an attempt to be overheard on government wiretaps. But he denied that this was a ploy to undermine the government's case against him.

McCord said he made the calls to test the government's honesty. He was convinced his own telephone had been illegally wiretapped, he said, but believed the government would probably deny it if asked about it in court.

He said he tried to be overheard on other taps on embassy telephones to see if the government would admit overhearing him there. He said it didn't. News reports today identified the embassies as those of Israel and Chile.

McCord's credibility as a witness has been under discussion since last Friday, when he told the Senate Watergate investigating committee that Caulfield had pressured him with offers of executive clemency.

Caulfield was listed to follow McCord as a witness at today's televised hearings. He has admitted transmitting offers of executive clemency to McCord, but denied that he invoked President Nixon's name in doing it.

McCord said Caulfield told him the President was aware of the clemency offers and would be informed of McCord's reaction. The White House has repeatedly denied that the President authorized clemency offers to anyone in the Watergate case, or that he was aware of any attempt to cover up the scandal.

McCord today repeated his previously publicized account of how he came to believe that the White House was ruthlessly attempting to blame the CIA for the Watergate breakin, for which McCord and others were convicted of burglary, wiretapping and conspiracy.

He said he had been told through his lawyer, Gerald Alch, that others wanted him to contend at his trial that the CIA was behind the wiretapping and burglary.

McCord, who retired from the CIA after 19 years of service, refused to go along, he said. He said Alch indicated that the CIA's personnel records could be altered to make it appear that McCord had been recalled to service for the Watergate operation.

McCord said Alch persisted in efforts to blame the CIA. "By now, I was completely convinced that the White House was behind the idea...and that the White House was turning ruthless, and would do whatever was politically expedient," McCord said.

It was only then, he said, that he sent his letter to Caulfield.

"The letter read in substance as follows, to the best of my memory," he said. "'Dear Jack, I am sorry to have to write you this letter. If (CIA Director Richard) Helms goes, and the Watergate operation is laid at CIA's feet where it does not belong, every tree in the forest will fall, there will be a scorched desert. The whole matter is at the precipice right now. Pass the message that if they want it to blow, they're on exactly the right course. I'm sorry that you'll get hurt in the fallout.'"

On another matter McCord said he was told a plane owned by the mysterious billionaire Howard Hughes had been arranged for use in a plan, never carried out, to burglarize the safe of a Las Vegas newspaper publisher. The plane allegedly was to fly the burglars to a Latin American hideout after the breakin.

McCord said fellow conspirator G. Gordon Liddy had told him that then-Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell told him that "blackmail" information on a Democratic candidate was in the safe of Hank Greenspun, publisher of the Las Vegas Sun. McCord has previously identified the candidate as Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine.

Telephone Cable Damaged

Long distance telephone service between Sedalia and 12 area communities ended abruptly about 3 a.m. Tuesday when lightning apparently struck an underground cable, it was reported by Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. The break was not found until about 11 a.m.

Lightning touched down about 4,000 feet north of Route HH off Highway 65. Bell technicians, as of 1 p.m., had not determined how much cable was affected, but repairs were scheduled to be completed Tuesday afternoon.

Besides telephone service, also disrupted were Associated Press and United Press International wire service reports to newspapers and radio stations in the area.

Line crews from Southwestern Bell found the trouble spot by digging for it, a Bell spokesman said. Service between Kansas City and Sedalia was spotty at its best most of the morning. St. Louis could not be reached at all.

A mobile unit was sent to Fitzgibbon Hospital in Marshall by Southwestern Bell to handle emergency situations. Other communities affected were Marshall Junction, Slater, Gillam, Miami, Blackwater, Bunceton, Pilot Grove, Sweet Springs, Houstonia and Arrow Rock, a Bell spokesman said.

City Council Votes to Move General Checking Account Fund

Disdaining what appeared to be an equitable distribution of city checking accounts among Sedalia's four banks, the City Council voted 6-1 Monday night to move the city's general fund account from Missouri State Bank to Sedalia Bank & Trust Co.

The same action, proposed at the first regular council session in May, was delayed because Councilman Raymond Bales of the Second Ward said he wanted an opportunity to study the subject.

During the same period of time, the Fourth Ward's George Dugan Jr., GOP chairman of the finance and taxes committee, conducted an investigation of his own. Dugan submitted figures to the council that he had obtained from each bank. The average accounts during 1972 found Missouri State, which has both the general fund and a funded account used to cover municipal bonding issues, to be way out front at $510,900. Next in size during 1972 was Sedalia Bank & Trust at $220,200, while Third National and Union Savings followed with $190,083 and $112,479, respectively.

Dugan sought to rearrange the accounts to leave them as equally distributed as possible. He made a motion to move the general account, which had a 1972 average of around $254,000, to Union Savings. The motion also included shifting from Union Savings a smaller account, with a 1972 average of around $40,000, to Sedalia Bank and Trust. Dugan said that such action would leave the city's money distributed as equally as it could be. His motion died for lack of a second.

R. S. "Bob" Wells, Democratic councilman from the Third Ward, immediately moved to relocate the general fund account to Sedalia Bank & Trust and got a second from Second Ward Councilman Ira Knox. The motion and second were a replay of what took place two weeks ago, but that motion was withdrawn to allow Bales to investigate the situation.

Nothing stood in the way Monday night, however, and the council voted for Wells' idea with only Dugan in opposition. Fourth Ward Councilman Lee Garrison was in St. Louis.

The only other Republican on the council, Don Broaddus of the First Ward, voted with the majority. Broaddus is real estate officer of Sedalia Bank & Trust.

Mayor Jerry Jones, who said at the first May meeting that he would veto any such measure as passed by the council Monday, told The Democrat-Capital he was considering a veto. If Jones elects to exercise his mayoral privilege, it would probably come at the first June session.

When contacted immediately after the first meeting in May, former Fourth Ward Councilman George Lockett, a Democrat, said he had opposed such action while in office. Lockett, who was chairman of the finance and taxes committee, said, "I opposed it because it was political favoritism of the rankest sort."

Lockett said his understanding of the idea's origin was that "a certain contractor" was trying to push business in the direction of a bank that had helped him get some business.

Bill Mills, president of Missouri State Bank, said that based on the 1972 average of $254,000 in the city's general fund account, a bank could expect to gross about $6,500 a year on the money, after certain deductions.

"Certainly we would have liked to have kept it," said Mills of the account, "or there wouldn't have been such a concerted effort to take it from us."

On Tuesday, however, Mayor Jones said the general account's balance was more like $125,000, on the average.

Wells told The Democrat-Capital after the meeting Monday night that an equal distribution of funds is irrelevant. He asserted that Union Savings had the general fund account "for 30 years" prior to the shift to Missouri State.

After the meeting two weeks ago, Wells reasoned that the funds should be moved because they are in an "interest-free" account and because a policy was enacted four years ago to move the account around. However, all the checking accounts under consideration are interest-free, and Councilman Jesse "Sonny" Robinson of the First Ward said that no such rotation policy was ever discussed four years ago.

Ordinance To Retain Federal Funds Passed

In order to avoid losing about $250,000 in federal aid for the Kentucky and Grand Avenue sewer lines, the City Council Monday evening passed an ordinance allowing residential areas outside the city limits to hook onto city sewer lines.

Such hookups, which will be allowed only in very specific instances under stringent regulations, solves a problem the city now faces in connection with a 35-home residential area known as Brentwood Manor which lies directly in the path of the Kentucky-Grand Avenue sewer extension line.

Formerly city ordinances blocked any use by non-Sedalia residents of the city's sewer system. Had that rule been maintained, the federal Environmental Protection Agency was expected to withhold payment of $250,000 which the city will receive to help build the sewer extension. The original easement obtained, but not recorded, for the property only cost $1, it was learned.

Also concerning the sewer extension, several Kentucky Avenue residents appeared at the meeting to check on what steps have been taken thus far to assure sewer service in their neighborhood.

Mayor Jerry Jones revealed that a cost estimate for the benefit district in that neighborhood is now being conducted as promised.

Third Ward Councilman Carl Franklin also noted the council is doing all it can right now.

"We're all committed to getting sewer (service) to that part of the city," he said. The possibility of a policy change to allow the city to partially fund such benefit districts was discussed in the pre-council session, but no action was taken.

Also in the pre-council session, it was decided to call for bids on renovation work at the city garage. Work that may be done includes new wiring, improved lighting, ventilation, stairway and balcony work, and the installation of modern grease traps in truck washing areas. Also, a chain link fence may be installed in an effort to cut down on thefts and vandalism at the garage. Pavement work was also mentioned as a potential project.

Two other topics which drew discussion but no action in the pre-council session were continuing parking problems in the Rival Manufacturing Co. area and the parking of refrigeration and other large

April Living Cost Increases Reported

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Cost of Living eased slightly in April but the increase still was extraordinarily high, the government reported today. Sharp advances were recorded in the cost of food, clothing, used cars and gasoline.

The Labor Department's Bureau of Labor Statistics said consumer prices rose seven-tenths of one per cent last month, following a nine-tenths of one per cent jump in March. April's jump matched February's increase. March's jump was a 22-year record.

The bureau said food bought in grocery stores rose 1.6 per cent, less than in each of the preceding three months but considerably higher than usual for April.

Fruits and vegetables were higher than normal and beef prices continued to climb, but the government said the increase was much smaller than in recent months.

Prices on a broad range of consumer goods other than food moved up sharply in April, reflecting recent wholesale price increases since the Nixon administration dropped price controls in January.

The jump in over-all consumer prices pushed the government's retail price index up at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 9.2 per cent over the past three months. The administration has set a goal of reducing inflation to 2.5 per cent by the end of the year.

The April consumer price index for all items showed a climb of 0.9 index points from March, up from 129.8 to 130.7.

In a separate report the bureau said average weekly wages in April rose four-tenths of a per cent, to $141.72. The rise resulted from increases of 0.5 per cent each in the average work week and in average hourly earnings which were partially offset by a seasonally adjusted six-tenths of a per cent increase in consumer prices.

The administration has said it expects food prices to begin tapering off later this year and has resisted any further controls. April's figures, however, were gathered before the administration's ceiling on meat prices was put into effect and thus did not reflect its effects, the government said.

Kissinger, Tho Meet Fifth Time

PARIS (AP) — Henry A. Kissinger and Le Duc Tho met for the fifth time today after Kissinger reported "some progress" in their earlier talks to revitalize the Vietnam cease-fire agreement.

President Nixon's national security adviser and the North Vietnamese Politburo member conferred for a total of 18 hours in their first four meetings that began last Thursday.

Committee Reopens Richardson Hearings

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a surprise move, the Senate Judiciary Committee reopened its hearings today on Elliot L. Richardson's nomination to be attorney general.

In the reopened session, he was questioned about the circumstances of a meeting he had with a former White House aide, Egil Krogh, who has taken responsibility for the breakin at the office of Pentagon papers figure Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist.

Sen. John V. Tunney, D-Calif., opened the questioning by asking Richardson to describe once again the conversation he had April 30 with John D. Ehrlichman, former chief domestic adviser to President Nixon.

Richardson said that Ehrlichman called him to say that Krogh would like to see him and that he had what Ehrlichman thought was "worthwhile information to give him."

Krogh formerly worked in the White House and headed a group known as the plumbers, which was assigned to run down and plug leaks of national security information.

Richardson testified that Ehrlichman told him that Krogh had information about "an aspect of the over-all situation I ought to know about."

Richardson, who previously had testified about meeting with Krogh on May 1, said that Ehrlichman in his call did not give him any clue as to what Krogh wanted to discuss.

As he had before, Richardson said that Krogh gave him a summary account of his role in the break-in at the psychiatrist's office and was concerned about what disclosure he should make and to whom and whether he could do so without violating national security matters that were involved.

Richardson, whose appointment to be attorney general had just been announced, said he told Krogh that he couldn't advise him. However, he said he agreed with Krogh's feeling that the public interest in disclosure outweighed the national security aspects.

First Voter Registration Stop Smithton

Pettis County Clerk Mrs. Mary Jane Wilson will be in Smithton Thursday on the first stop of her campaign to register county voters.

Mrs. Wilson said she and an assistant will be at the Smithton City Hall from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Thursday. All persons at least 18-years-old and residents of the county for 30 days are eligible to register to vote, she said.

Each newly-registered voter should know his township, Mrs. Wilson added.

County-wide voter registration was approved by voters in last November's general election. A recent decision from State Atty. Gen. John Danforth stated that voter registration could begin immediately after publication that an ordinance had been adopted.

Mrs. Wilson said county clerk's employes will visit each of the county's larger towns and 18 precincts to facilitate county-wide voter registration. She said she hopes to complete the campaign by summer.

Any county resident who has not registered to vote may register at the county clerk's office at the courthouse, she said.

Under county-wide voter registration, all persons in the county must be registered to vote in elections. Sedalia already has voter registration.

Gunman, Four Others Are Fatally Wounded

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — "I guess he just cracked," said William Edward Farmer Jr. "He knew my father — knew him well. We had been children together."

Farmer's father was one of four persons fatally wounded Monday by a gunman who sprayed rifle bullets without warning along a quiet Memphis street. The man also killed a police officer before he was forced from a house by tear gas and shot to death.

Authorities said the gunman, identified as David Sanders, 30, was sauntering down the street with a powerful rifle dangling in his hand when he suddenly whirled and shot to death four neighborhood residents. Four other people, including a federal parole officer, were wounded as the gunman fired at passing autos.

Witnesses told police the first to die was an elderly junkman, John Aldridge, who was collecting pop bottles and tossing them into his two-wheel cart.

The victims were William Farmer, 73, a retired railroad man, Jessie Dooley, and Henrietta Watson, known as "Candy Girl" because she worked in an adjoining candy store.

"One of the ladies from down near the corner called me and told me somebody had gone crazy and just started shooting folks and that my husband was one of them," said Lendora Farmer, 60. Her 28-year-old son, William, said he and Sanders had been classmates together.

Police Chief Bill Price said officers arrived at the scene shortly before 4 p.m. EDT and were told by witnesses that the gunman had fled into a house down the street.

As one of the officers, Patrolman David Wayne Clark, 31, went to the rear of the house, the gunman jumped from behind the garage and fired a shot that struck the patrolman in the head. He then raced into another house.

With reinforcements on the scene, Price directed that tear gas be fired into the house and as Sanders appeared at the front door and brandished his rifle as if to fire, he was shot to death by a volley of shotgun and pistol fire.

Price said Sanders had seven arrests on his record, including charges of rape, carrying a pistol, assault and battery and disorderly conduct and drunkenness.

Price said records showed that Sanders served a three-year prison term on a 1963 conviction of rape against a minor.

Six States Are Given Excellent Study Ratings

By RICHARD J. OLIVE
Associated Press Writer

KANSAS CITY (AP) — California, Colorado, Connecticut, Washington, Oregon and Wyoming have excellent ratings in a "quality of life" study released Tuesday by a Kansas City-based research center. At the other end of the scale, with substandard marks, is much of the Old South.

The study, based on data compiled from a broad range of sources dated 1970, were completed by Dr. Ben Chieh-Liu, senior economist at Midwest Research Institute (MRI).

The states and the District of Columbia were rated in nine areas affecting their citizens. A few of the findings included:

—Federal expenditures on manpower and training programs ranged from $9 per capita in Michigan, Nebraska and New Jersey to $97 per capita in the nation's capital.

—Local and state expenditures in education were between $189 per capita in Tennessee and $400 in Alaska.

—The percentage of occupied housing units without plumbing facilities was between 2.1 per cent in California and 24.3 per cent in Mississippi.

—Parks and recreational acreage per 100,000 population was between 5.7 acres in Louisiana and 523.5 acres in Maine.

Categories in which the states were rated were individual status, individual equality, living conditions, agriculture, technology, economic status, education, health and welfare and state and local governments. The study of living conditions did not include such factors as air and water pollution and traffic congestion because of insufficient data.

More than 100 factors were studied in assigning scores to the states relating to an index mean, 1.00. The states also were rated A (excellent), B (average) or C (substandard).

Eleven states listed as substandard, in order of their appearance on the index, are Georgia, Tennessee, Arkansas, West Virginia, Virginia, Louisiana, North Carolina, Kentucky, Mississippi, Alabama and South Carolina.

Income and material wealth were not found to be significant factors except in states "with very low levels of per capita income (which) also tend to rank low in all measures of quality of life."

Studies using different criteria and data from different years were completed previously by MRI and Lifestyle Magazine. "Although there is less agreement among the three studies as to which are the best 10 states," the latest MRI study says, "they are, to a surprising degree, unanimous in pointing out those which rank the lowest."

The study says rankings published by Lifestyle Magazine for the year 1931 show the "states with low (quality of life) ratings have held that position for more than four decades."

By pointing out states with excellent and substandard ratings, MRI hopes the data will be useful for interstate comparisons and to decision-makers in examining weaknesses. Otherwise, Liu said, the ratings generally are unimportant — "except to chamber-of-commerce types" — because of the slight deviation among states rated "average."

Somehow, he said, a newspaper and some radio stations in Minnesota learned the state had slipped from No. 2 in the 1967 study to No. 13 in the latest study. In telephone calls before the the results were released, the news representatives wanted reasons, and "that was only because the state made a big deal out of the No. 2 ranking in 1967," Liu said.

Liu's research was supported by a grant from the Kerr Foundation of Oklahoma, which was interested in seeing where Oklahoma stood nationally in the social - economic - political - environmental index, Liu said.

The data placed it 33rd. Liu, native to mainland China who spent most of his life on Taiwan and the last five years in the United States, plans to update the study every five years. A self-avowed disciple of J. Kenneth Galbraith, economist, Liu views his own efforts "as a good start for social indicators."

"To make determinations in the social-economic field, the GNP (gross national product) is not enough to do the job," he said. "Quality of life means much more than annual income or GNP."

Galbraith, noting that the economy is obsessed with growth factors, speaks ominously of the future economy and available natural resources if GNP continues to climb unabated and salaries double in years to come, Liu said.

Clues Sought In Slaying Of Elderly Man

RICHLAND, Mo. (AP) — Authorities continued searching Tuesday for clues in Monday's slaying of an 82-year-old Stoutland, Mo., man.

He was dumped into a spring in a cave three miles southeast of here, badly beaten and his throat slashed.

Authorities declined to identify the victim, a life-long resident of this area.

A 21-year-old woman was being held for investigation and at least one more person was being sought, according to LaClede County Sheriff Francis Murphy.

Residents of the area reported seeing the victim with the woman here Monday morning. She told officers she left him about 2 p.m.—an hour and a half before he was found dead.

Murphy said no motive has been established for the slaying.

Two-Year-Old Doesn't Talk

Dear Dr. Lamb — We have a small child, almost two years old, in placement, who appears to be in good physical health and mentally alert but has made no attempt in speaking. Do you have any suggestions on how to handle the situation?

Dear Reader — Children often do not speak by the age of 2, in fact, in contacting some of my neurology colleagues, I am told that one should not become unduly concerned if a child doesn't talk until he reaches the age of 4 years. I am told pediatric neurologists see many children who are three years of age and haven't started talking yet.

At the early age of 2 and 3, the important point is to be certain that the child does receive language properly, technically called receptive language ability. This means that you can tell that the child understands what is said. If the child is told to "wash your hands" there would be some response, or if he is told "don't do that" there would be a proper response. There should be definite evidence that vocal commands are heard and understood.

If this is true, the important approach is to relax and not bug the child. Just leave the child alone and let him or her play with other children of the same age and don't push him. In time the child will start speaking normally.

The one common problem that is important to rule out is deafness. If the child shows receptivity of language and follows commands, then the child is not deaf. If there is no response to verbal commands then the possibility remains that the problem is really deafness. It is sometimes difficult to diagnose deafness in a young child. One measure is to take an EEG (electroencephologram or brain wave) and then observe any changes that occur when a loud noise is made to startle the child. If the child does not notice the noise, there is the possibility that he never heard it. If the brain wave shows a response then the hearing is probably intact. There are other sophisticated tests that neurologists use to find out if a child is deaf.

Rarely there are other problems within the brain in receiving language and one must be certain that the child understands language as opposed to just hearing noise. But if there is no evidence of deafness, and particularly if receptive language is present, you don't have much to worry about.

In extremely rare instances, a child may be born with some defect of the vocal cords and has a mechanical problem in speaking.

After age 4 or certainly by age 5, if the child does not start speaking a very extensive neurological examination needs to be carried out. But let me repeat again that for children below 4 years of age who have not started speaking but are bright and normal in other respects and demonstrate language receptivity, the best thing is to stop worrying about it and let the child develop normally.

Pleads Guilty To Importing Of Hashish

KANSAS CITY, Kan. (AP) — Daniel Thorne Reynolds, 34, Kansas City, Kan., pleaded guilty Monday to a federal charge of importing hashish to the U.S.

Reynolds entered the plea before Judge Earl E. O'Connor in U.S. District Court. He was released on $3,000 bond pending a presentence investigation.

Reynolds was charged with receiving the drug through the mail April 11. Federal agents reported 1,816 grams of hashish mailed from Germany was discovered in several shoe boxes being transferred at O'Hare International Airport near Chicago. They said the substance was allowed to continue through the mails to Reynolds, who was later arrested.

In another case Monday, Judge O'Connor sentenced Herman Lee Petty, 32, Kansas City, Kan., to five years in prison for possession of heroin with intent to sell.

Acupuncture Toothache Treatment

KANSAS CITY (AP) — A Chinese physician told a dentists' convention here Monday she uses acupuncture to relieve toothaches and the method "works 90 per cent of the time."

Dr. Lao Chi-Hwa, who practices at Waukegan, Ill., spoke at the joint annual convention of the Missouri and Kansas State dental associations.

"I only treat the pain, not the cause—which is the dentist's job," she said.

In her technical presentation, Dr. Lao talked about the history of acupuncture, variations in needles, puncture points related to the teeth, and signs which indicate the technique should not be used.

Public Will Hear Appraiser Present Views

A public meeting on the proposed reassessment of Pettis County will be held at 7:30 p.m. next Tuesday at the Circuit Courtroom of the county courthouse, Presiding Judge Harry Walch said.

The featured speaker will be Russell Gibbs of the professional reappraisal firm of Hunnicutt and Associates, St. Petersburg, Fla., Walch said. County assessor-elect William McCune will chair the meeting, Walch added.

The Florida firm and the Cleminshaw Co., a similar real estate appraising firm from Cleveland, Ohio, are the only two such companies to express interest so far in reappraising the county for tax purposes.

Walch said Gibbs has agreed to speak at no cost to the county. "It's no indication, either, that he (his company) will get the bid," Walch added.

Both firms are expected to submit closed bids to the county court by June 1. The court has announced that reassessment of the county should begin by July 1.

Civil Suit Names Sedalia Business

A $7,890.95 civil suit was filed in Pettis County Circuit Court Monday against Home Building Corp., 303 North Park.

The suit, filed by Steves Sash and Door Co., San Antonio, Tex., alleges that the Sedalia company owes that amount from a bill dated Jan. 29. The suit contends that Home Building Corp. purchased materials from the plaintiff and has refused to pay the amount due.

Credit Card Use Ends In Formal Charges

Misdemeanor charges of "fraudulent use of credit cards" were filed Monday in Pettis County Magistrate Court against two men.

The charges were filed after Richard Pettis, manager of the Derby Service Station, 2409 West Broadway, reported to Sedalia police last week that on separate occasions persons had used invalid credit cards to purchase gasoline from the station.

One charge alleges that John M. Nielsen, no address given, Thursday purchased 18.7 gallons of gasoline worth $5.85. The other charge alleges that John E. Gonzalez, no address given, on May 12 purchased 19.8 gallons of gasoline and an ice chest from the station, valued at $8.53. Both persons used suspended credit cards in making the purchases, according to the charges.

Neither man had been apprehended by authorities as of 1 p.m. Tuesday.

Sedalia Man Shot Following An Argument

A Sedalia man, Cecil P. Young, 423 North Stewart, was shot in the chest with a small caliber pistol last Thursday following a dispute outside a Macon tavern, Macon County Deputy Sheriff Dan Milburn told The Democrat-Capital Tuesday.

Milburn said Young was allegedly shot by Alonzo Fitzpatrick, also known as Sonny Johnson, 31, Quincy, Ill., about 1 a.m. Thursday. Both men were employes of the Howard Construction Co. of Sedalia, which was performing road work on Highway 3 in Macon County.

A spokesman for Howard Construction Co. said Tuesday that Young is listed in satisfactory condition at Boone County Hospital in Columbia. He was transferred there Friday from a hospital in Macon, Milburn said.

Milburn said Fitzpatrick voluntarily turned himself in to Macon County sheriff's officers about 1 a.m. Friday. He was arraigned in Macon County Magistrate Court Friday on a charge of assault with intent to kill. He is free on $10,000 bond.

Also charged in connection with the incident was Mary Wright, Quincy, who reportedly drove Fitzpatrick across the state line to Illinois after the incident, Milburn said. She was charged in Magistrate Court here with transporting a wanted person, Milburn added.

A spokesman for the construction company said doctors decided against removing the bullet from Young.

Milburn said details of the events leading up to the shooting were not obtained. He said authorities have not yet located the weapon.

Owner of Cabin Cruiser Still Not Identified

CAMDENTON, Mo. (AP) — The identity of a cabin cruiser that exploded and sank on the Niangua arm of the Lake of the Ozarks Saturday night remained a mystery today.

A diver was employed to try to locate the boat but bad weather forced a halt in his efforts. High winds caused rough water. The diver, John Huggins of near Camdenton, said late Monday he had not found the cruiser but had narrowed the area of search and was confident he would find it.

The boat went down about 10:50 p.m. Saturday in an area where the water is 50 to 60 feet deep. Jack Smith of the Missouri Boat Commission said efforts to identify the boat's owner by the checking with marinas had been unsuccessful.

He said the boat was anchored at about the three-mile marker between Flame Resort and Mockingbird Resort.

It was never positively determined whether anyone was board.

Mending Cover

The cover, which came with the truck, was found to be the wrong size and required a few modifications by Webb, who has done similar work for other city fire equipment. (Democrat-Capital Photo)

Fears of Party Rift Dispelled by Hearnes

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Any possibilities of a rift in the Missouri Democratic party, or former Gov. Warren E. Hearnes seeking to unseat Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton in 1974, were dispelled here Monday during a joint news conference attended by both political veterans.

Hearnes, who left the Governor's Mansion in January after an eight-year term, said the speculation that he would oppose Sen. Eagleton in 1974 grew out of a rumor at this month's Jackson Day Dinner at Springfield, Mo.

"After it passed the rumor stage, I wanted to lay to rest the feeling that I'd run against Sen. Eagleton," Hearnes told reporters.

"I leave myself open. If I wanted to some day, I'd re-enter political life" but "I have no such plans at present," he said.

Asked if he might oppose Democratic Sen. Stuart Symington in 1976, Hearnes said that it was an "unfair question" since it's "so far ahead of time." Symington will be 72 next month.

Both Hearnes and Eagleton said the current leadership of the state Democratic party rests in the hands of David Donnelly, state party chairman.

"I think the Democratic leadership is in a collective basis. Warren Hearnes is an able leader and has a lot to offer to this party," Eagleton said.

"It's not easy for the party to function without a governor. The chairman should be the dominat voice in party affairs when the party is out of power," said Hearnes who has been practicing law here and in Charleston since he left the state's executive office.

Hearnes and other members of the state party's executive committee have been feuding over the handling of a July 28 fund-raising dinner and about running the party in general.

Eagleton, who supported Sen. George S. McGovern for the presidential nomination at the Democratic National Convention, withdrew as master of ceremonies of the event.

Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., who was supported at the convention by Hearnes, is to be the guest speaker. U.S. Rep. James Symington will be the MC.

Eagleton said he "absolutely" intended to attend the affair, which will be called a birthday dinner for Hearnes, as was the custom during the time he was governor.

He said he requested Rep. Symington to preside at the party gathering.

Tentative Date For Preliminary Budget Hearing

A preliminary city budget hearing for the coming fiscal year, beginning June 1, has been tentatively set for May 30, the City Council's finance committee chairman George Dugan Jr. announced Tuesday.

The initial meeting, Dugan said, will be attended by himself, other finance committee members Carl Franklin and Don Broaddus, Mayor Jerry Jones and City Clerk Ralph Dedrick.

Dugan said the meeting will be held in Dedrick's office "because all the facts and figures are there."

Following this meeting, Dugan indicated, committee members will later confer with the various city department heads regarding their financial requests for the coming year.

Dugan earlier stated the committee planned to have the final budget proposal prepared for submission to the entire council at the June 18th meeting. The council will then have two weeks to inspect and make recommendations regarding the document's final form.

Rural Buildings Damaged By Winds

PILOT GROVE — High winds during a brief rainstorm were reportedly responsible for $2,500 worth of damages to out buildings on two farms about eight miles southwest of here Monday afternoon.

According to the Highway Patrol at Jefferson City, high winds did about $1,000 damage to a large storage building on the H.P. Deuschle farm. Another $1,500 damage was done to several smaller buildings on the Paul Gramlich farm nearby, according to the Patrol.

The damages, which were reported about 4:50 p.m. Monday, were located along Route N near the Clear Creek community. No other damage reports were received by the Patrol in that area, it was learned.

BULLETIN

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — A Missouri public education budget of $505 million for 1973-74 was approved by the Senate today, but not before extensive debate by senators who wanted to increase the totals.

The bill, which covers spending for elementary and secondary education and junior colleges, goes back to the House for approval of amendments.

The budget includes expenditures of $359 million from the state school foundation program state taxes and fees, a $20 million increase over last year.

The total budget is $6.4 million less than was approved by the House and $1.9 million less than Gov. Christopher S. Bond recommended.

Driver Flees Scene After Two-Car Wreck

A hit-and-run car accident, involving a rear end collision at the intersection of Broadway and Beacon, was reported to Sedalia police Tuesday.

According to police, a north-bound car driven by Mrs. Louise Grieshaber, 58, 2105 West 14th, was struck in the rear by a second vehicle while she had stopped to turn left.

Mrs. Grieshaber told police that, following the accident, the driver of the car, a man in his early 20's, told her he was going to Bothwell Hospital for treatment of a cut lip. He then told her he would meet her there to discuss the accident and possibly notify police.

The young man, according to police, apparently never entered the hospital emergency room. Efforts to locate him were unsuccessful. Mrs. Grieshaber, who was not injured in the collision, said she failed to get the complete license number of the man's car.

Full-Time Job Is Ahead for Scooter

City Parking Meter Superintendent David Schick Tuesday said the department's new $2,300 "meter scooter" will be used by him on a regular basis, rather than serving as a backup vehicle as he had earlier announced.

Schick indicated there was a misunderstanding regarding the original intent of the City Council. "I'm going to put my old scooter to rest and use the new one fulltime," Schick said. "I'm satisfied with the new arrangement."

Wells made no mention of either reason when questioned Monday evening.

Mayor Jones revealed that the figures discussed two weeks ago were based on only one day, Feb. 23, 1973.

The issue of moving any checking accounts originally came up Feb. 19, when the council took a "straw vote" to move the account but also decided to await an investigation by Jones concerning which banks had how much of the city's funds.

One Sedalia banker familiar with the maneuvering on the city's accounts said the action was "definitely politically motivated." Lockett, who blocked the switching of accounts when he was finance chairman, said Tuesday, "If this sort of thing keeps up, I'm going to run for council again."

Dugan said the council action smacked of "favoritism."

Bike Ride Deadline Wednesday

Wednesday is the final date for persons to register to ride their bikes in the second annual ESA Million Dollar Bike Ride.

According to Mrs. Vicki Bock, recruiting chairman for Rho Tau chapter of Epsilon Sigma Alpha International, a women's service organization, about 60 persons and the State Fair Saddle Club have signed up to ride in the June 3 event at the Missouri State Fairgrounds.

The purpose of the ride, Mrs. Bock said, is to raise money for St. Jude Children's Research Hospital in Memphis, Tenn. "Children from anywhere in the United States who are suffering from a catastrophic childhood disease being studied at St. Jude's may receive treatment at the hospital at no charge. Even transportation charges from the child's home to the research hospital are paid," Mrs. Bock said.

In 1972 ESA International pledged they would raise a million dollars for St. Jude's. A cross country bike ride was held to raise funds and in Sedalia over $1300 was collected after a bike ride held in July where four disc jockeys pedaled over 120 miles.

This year the ride is open to everyone, Mrs. Bock indicated. Children under 18 must have parental permission and although most riders will be mounting bikes, State Fair Saddle Club has consented to secure pledges and ride their horses on an hourly rate. "We think it's great to have the Saddle Club back our project," Mrs. Bock said.

All riders are asked to be at the Fairgrounds by 1:30 p.m. Sunday, June 3. They may ride anytime between 2 and 5 p.m. and refreshments will be provided free of charge.

A scenic route throughout the Fairgrounds has been mapped out and riders will be stamped each time they go a mile, Mrs. Bock explained.

Following the event a card telling the total number of miles ridden will be given to each rider who will then contact his sponsors to collect pledges. It will be each rider's responsibility to collect his pledges and take them to collection headquarters at Missouri State Bank the week following the ride.

Prizes offered by Cecil's Cyclery, 700 South Ohio, will be awarded to the person who rides the most miles and who collects the most money. In case of rain the bike ride will be held June 10. Persons may register by calling Mrs. Bock, 827-3687, by Wednesday.

Story Teller Masters Her Art

By EVE SHARBUTT
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Marijane Meaker tells stories for a living.

She uses several names and different styles, but the fortyish blonde author says she doesn't rely on gimmicks. She regards writing as a profession, just like bricklaying.

"I like to tell stories. I don't think about changing gears to different kinds of writing audiences," said the author of suspense thrillers, children's books and a favorably reviewed novel.

A native of upstate New York, Marijane always wanted to be a writer. She went to journalism school at the University of Missouri because "I always believed you had to earn your living." But she didn't pass economics, and switched her major to English. Then she came to New York to make her fortune and promptly lost, according to her count, nine jobs in a row.

"Then I sold my first pocket book. I wrote mysteries because that was the only thing that got reviewed in pocket book. And I didn't use my real name because Marijane was considered good for gothic romances, but not gutsy enough for mysteries," she said.

As Vin Packer, she wrote "why-done-its," not who-done-its. She analyzed famous cases.

"I could never do clues or blood and guts. Suspense is my field," she added.

Always a prolific writer, Marijane says it is hard to find new fields "in my old age." But she has written a nonfiction book on suicide.

"Businessmen, writers and artists commit suicide," she said, "but not musicians or sports stars of renown. Then I started a novel about my home town, everyone does. Then finally I wrote "Shockproof Sidney Skate," a very today look at a young man with a homosexual parent.

"I thought kids raised by homosexuals were no more hung up than other kids. I believe homosexuality is usually a reaction against a very straight upbringing. I just don't think it matters."

"Shockproof" was favorably reviewed and is now on the soft cover best seller list.

Marijane is also the author of three successful children's books about contemporary living.

"I got involved in that because of dope addicts in the neighborhood. I felt victimized. And a woman close by was involved in rehabilitation work, although her own daughter had obesity problems and was getting fatter and fatter. It was putting out the fire in the house across the street, symptomatic of America," she said.

Three Easy Tips For Gleaming Sink

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY — Do tell Mrs. D. B. that a short time ago when I bought my stainless steel sink the salesman told me to clean it by rubbing with a light coat of baby oil and I think it works beautifully. — MRS. R. L. F.

DEAR POLLY — Mrs. D. B. can clean her stainless steel sink with the same detergent she uses on her dishes. Rinse with clear water and then wipe with a dry towel or sponge for a gleam. She is right in avoiding abrasives as they might scratch the sink. — MRS. C. S.

DEAR GIRLS — After any greasy residue is removed with dishwashing detergent, a few drops of ammonia can be put on a damp cloth to make the sink look sparkling clean. The final step, always, is wiping dry with a dry towel to avoid water marks. — POLLY

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY — Do you or any of the readers have any suggestions for watering hanging plants? I am now using a ladder to reach them and it is a nuisance to have to get it out every time I water these plants. — Y. J.

DEAR POLLY — My Pet Peeve could be so easily remedied if stores with fabric departments would have a full length mirror for their customers. Fabrics come in such beautiful colors and patterns but one cannot always be sure how a fabric will look on her. Holding a long length up to get a reasonable facsimile of how the piece looks against you, would help decide whether or not it is for you. What a difference this would make. I know I would buy more fabrics if I could have the use of a mirror. — MRS. W. M. S.

DEAR POLLY — For a colorful accent piece to hang on the wall and that will treasure photos of those you love, cover a piece of ceiling tile of a size to fit snugly in a large picture frame, with velvet the color of your choice. Place several of your favorite photos in small frames that have small brass hangers fastened to the backs. Secure these to the velvet back in the large frame with decorative pins. Old-fashioned hat pins are great for this and double the treasure. The arrangement can be easily changed when desired. This is also a good way to display certain collections of things such as keys. Convert an old vanity dresser that has several drawers, into a sewing table. Have your husband attach a wide leaf to the back that can be raised or lowered and find it great for laying out patterns and various other projects. Leftover fiberboard ceiling tiles make nice hot plate pads for the table or to leave on the counter as a resting place for a hot cooky sheet just taken from the oven. — MRS. P. R. K.

DEAR POLLY — Hang a small pincushion inside each bedroom closet. Stick in a few common pins, a needle threaded with clear thread and a few safety pins of different sizes. This is great for a quick fix-it and perfect for the guest room closet. — PAULA

TREAD WEAR EXPECTANCY

Because of variable driving habits and road conditions under which tires are used, it is impractical for Montgomery Ward, and conceivably misleading to our customers, to guarantee any specific number of months or miles of tread wear. We can, however, indicate the wear potential we have built into our tires in terms of service in normal family use. If a Riverside tire wears down to the tread wear indicators during the Tread Wear Expectancy, Montgomery Ward will upon presentation of the tire and evidence of date of purchase replace the tire for the then current price less the following dollar allowance:

Tread Wear Expectancy	Tread Wearout Allowance
42,000 miles / 40,000 miles	Prorated on Miles Driven
45 month	$13.00
40 month	10.00
39 month	8.00
36 month	6.00
33 month	5.00
30 month	4.00
24 month	3.00
18 month	2.00

ISRAEL: A Flame Rekindled

VIII: The Leaders

Ever since King Richard the Lionhearted marched to the Holy Land to do battle against Saladin in the Crusades, the Middle East has known strong leaders. Some of them, like Richard and Lawrence of Arabia and John Bagot Glubb, who led the Arab Legion in the 1948 war, were outsiders but the land itself has also produced powerful men and women.

With the death of Gamal Abdel Nasser in 1970, the Arab states were, until quite recently, left without charismatic leadership. Nasser, once an obscure military officer, burst upon the international scene in 1952 when he and other officers overthrew the corrupt regime of King Farouk. Although Nasser, as an Egyptian, was not himself an Arab, he managed to create a nationalistic fervor among Arabs and Moslems which had been lost for hundreds of years.

The "new" Nasser, perhaps, is Libya's ruler, Muammar Quaddafi, a young (31), devout Moslem who is regarded as the most belligerent of the Arab leaders. Newly discovered oil has made Libya potentially wealthy and Quaddafi appears able — and willing — to use the money to hurt Israel. Quaddafi has secured close political arrangements with Egypt and Syria and is emerging as the No. 1 Arab leader.

Other Arab leaders include the romantic figure of King Hussein of Jordan, considered a moderate and marked for assassination by Yasser Arafat, head of the Al-Fatah, the Palestinian guerrilla movement. Egypt's president, Anwar Sadat, seems more a caretaker and defers often to Libya's Quaddafi.

In Israel, the leaders appear larger than life. The grand patriarch is, of course, David Ben-Gurion, now retired to a kibbutz in the Negev Desert but once Israel's first prime minister and a true father of his country. The nation's current prime minister is the most famous pupil of the public school on Milwaukee's Fourth Street, Golda Meir. She played a key role in the founding of the new state and was a long-time member of Ben-Gurion's cabinet. The folksy and street-smart Golda (by which she is universally known) was once called by Ben-Gurion "the very best man we've got."

Who will follow the aging grandmother as prime minister? A strong possibility is Moshe Dayan, the defense minister who is as dramatic as the patch he wears over the eye he lost in Syria during World War II. A Sabra, or native-born Israeli, he has a great following in Israel because of his heroism and leadership in all three of the nation's wars with the Arabs.

A commanding international figure is Abba Eban, the foreign minister. As Israel's spokesman at the United Nations, Eban states his country's position with an awesome eloquence and boldness.

Despite recent cooperative efforts, leaders of Arab states and factions are often at odds. Yet it is the oil in Saudi Arabia, Kuwait and Libya which may ultimately unify the Arabs and place Israel's existence as a state in even greater jeopardy. The temperate Arab voices are few, yet persistent. As Hussein has remarked, "In 1948, we were dealing with Jewish emigres from Europe. Now more than 50 per cent of Israelis were born in Israel. Where are they to go? Whether the Arabs like it or not, they must make peace with Israel."

IRA Chief Jailed For Three Years

DUBLIN (AP) — An Irish Republican Army chieftain, Joe Cahill, was jailed for three years Monday for gun-running and belonging to the outlawed organization.

Two other men, Denis McInerney and Sean Garvey, were given two-year terms on similar charges by a special criminal court. The sentences were the heaviest passed on convicted IRA men since the Irish government launched its crackdown on the guerrillas last November.

Cahill and the others were convicted for trying to smuggle five tons of guns, explosives and ammunition into the Irish republic last March aboard a German ship.

They were captured by the Irish navy as they prepared to land the arsenal off the Waterford County coast.

Two other men captured with Cahill were convicted on arms offenses and received two-year suspended prison sentences. Charges against a sixth man were dismissed.

Independence Voting On Sunday Liquor

INDEPENDENCE, Mo. (AP) — Voters went to the polls today to decide whether to allow the sale of liquor by the drink on Sundays.

Larry Johnson, a recent high school graduate who headed the campaign to defeat Sunday sales, says the election has been kept low key for fear of it developing into an emotional mud-slinging issue.

The first radio and newspaper advertisements on either side appeared last Friday. A group of restaurant owners, calling itself the Independence Civil Liberties Union, published the ads.

If the proposal carries, sale of liquor by the drink will be permitted on Sunday in restaurants in which at least half of the income is from the sale of food.

Man Declared Competent To Stand Tr ial

KANSAS CITY, Kan. (AP) — A man charged with involuntary manslaughter in connection with an incident involving the theft of railroad locomotives was certified Monday to be mentally competent to stand trial.

Gary W. Hurst, 21, Scarsdale, N.Y., is also charged with grand theft in connection with the incident April 15 in the railyards. Police say Hurst commandeered a four-unit diesel locomotive and started driving it through the yards until it smashed head-on into a switch engine.

A railroad employee, Paul Basham, was killed when he leaped from the switch engine but was run over by a third train.

A preliminary hearing was set for June 19.

Chinese Medical Care Praised by Specialist

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The head of a team of American heart specialists that toured China says the group observed a level of medical care worthy of praise.

Dr. E. Grey Dimond returned here Monday after completing his third trip to the People's Republic of China since September, 1971. This time he led a group of eight physicians on a two-week tour and he and his wife remained for another two weeks. Dr. Dimond is provost of health sciences at the University of Missouri at Kansas City.

He spoke with admiration of the availability of health care in China, including remote rural regions.

"They've done a better job than we have of making care absolutely available," he said. "They have decided to get care as far as the farthest water buffalo."

This trip took Dr. Dimond about 5,000 miles through China's interior in addition to major cities.

He said rural medicine is marked by meticulous records and that the Chinese have established far-reaching mandatory immunization programs.

He said the measles immunization program in China may reach a larger percentage of persons than is reached in the U.S. And he said use of oral polio vaccine has all but eliminated the incidence of infantile paralysis.

Dr. Dimond credited "barefoot doctors" with spreading medicine to villages. A barefoot doctor receives about six months basic training and treats minor illnesses, gives immunizations and is taught to recognize more serious problems for referral elsewhere.

The philosophy of the Chinese medical school reflects the commitment of the government to extend care, he said. The Chinese student finishes his formal study in three or three and a half years. And he gets experience in treating patients in the countryside.

Referring to U.S. medical training which, with residency in a specialty, can last nearly ten years Dr. Dimond said, "We are training an elite. They have decided they must make medical personnel available."

He characterized Chinese medical research as "just beginning," saying this fact is also a reflection of the decision to extend care first. But he said Chinese physicians and students are familiar with leading Western Medical journals.

"I could talk with Chinese physicians at the same level of literature," he said.

The American doctors observed three operations involving use of acupuncture as anesthesia. The operations, at the Third Municipal People's Hospital in Shanghai, a teaching hospital, included neurosurgery and open heart surgery. The patients remained awake throughout the procedure and the operations were described as successful.

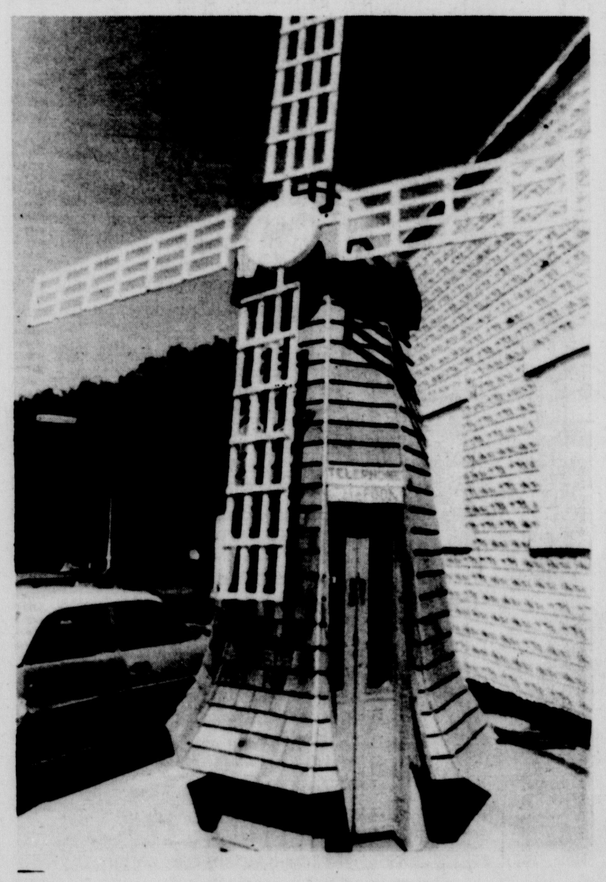

Dr. Dimond said care in Chinese hospitals is routinely of high quality. He described the hospitals as "spartan but immaculate."

"They are lean on equipment compared to a U.S. medical center," he said, "But they are amply supplied with all layers of personnel." He said there is no shortage of nurses, lab technicians or other personnel. He said one major hospital the team visited had performed 492 consecutive operations without developing a wound infection.

He described regular public health programs in the provinces he visited and said worms have been virtually eliminated and flies brought under control.

Heart disease may be China's most bothersome medical problem. Dr. Dimond said he was told the incidence of coronary heart disease has doubled in the last decade. He said Chinese doctors cite the same reasons as U.S. doctors, including poor diet and the stresses of high-pressure urban living. He said the Chinese seem to be treating cardiovascular problems as well as Western doctors.

In total darkness the healthy human eye has the extraordinary capability of seeing the light of a single candle for a distance of up to 14 miles, according to the Society for Visual Care. To insure the best possible visual perception, the society advocates regular and thorough professional eye examinations.

Cambodia holds key to South Vietnam

Just as the United States is extricating itself from South Vietnam, events in neighboring Cambodia threaten to undermine all that this nation hoped to accomplish in Southeast Asia.

The collapse of Cambodia now appears to be a foregone conclusion. Local Communist insurgents, bolstered by North Vietnamese cadres, are tightening the noose around the capital of Phnom Penh. Large sections of the country already are under Red control, and government forces are in disarray.

President Lon Nol's shaky regime, riddled with corruption, appears incapable of rallying popular support to resist the Reds. Lon Nol himself is in precarious health, and will leave soon for treatment in this country.

The one military force that up to now has held the Communists at bay — American air power — no longer can be relied upon. Both the Senate and the House have voted to cut off funds for Cambodian operations. Although the Pentagon has said it can carry on the air war with other funds, it is doubtful that the Nixon administration would actually flaunt the will of Congress in such a manner.

Cambodia's capitulation would seal the fate of South Vietnam. Both nations share a common border that runs roughly two-thirds the length of South Vietnam. This would provide a staging area for Red incursions into Vietnam that would be all but impossible to defend against.

Intelligence reports indicate that the North Vietnamese already have drawn up a plan for the administration of Phnom Penh following its collapse. This would insure Hanoi a virtual protectorate over Cambodia.

It's not a very bright picture, for Cambodia and South Vietnam as well as the United States, which has invested so much in Southeast Asia for so little apparent return.

A conservative view

Cronkite concedes a liberal TV bias

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

WASHINGTON — A year or so ago, the Oliver Quayle pollsters sought to identify the one person in public life in whom Americans repose the greatest trust. At the head of the list was Walter Cronkite, veteran anchorman for CBS. To judge from a long interview in the current Playboy, that trust is well placed. Diogenes could put his lantern down: Behold, an honest man.

Kilpatrick

This is not to suggest that Cronkite's perceptions are perfect, or that his opinions are necessarily sound. His "conspiracy" theory of the Nixon administration and the press has the same grim looniness that one encounters in the John Birch Society. But on one of the most controversial questions in journalism today, Cronkite speaks with great candor and great truth.

Playboy's interview was conducted by Ron Powers, TV critic for the Chicago Sun-Times. Powers noted the administration's conviction that "most newscasters are biased against conservatism," and asked Cronkite if there were "some truth in the view that television newsman tend to be left of center."

"Well," said Cronkite, "certainly liberal, and possibly left of center as well. I would have to accept that."

Cronkite went on to define "liberal" in the classic sense of open-mindedness and non-commitment. By "left of center," he meant to suggest a political position. The nature of a newsman's work, much of it on "the seamier side of human endeavor," tends to draw reporters away from the establishment "and sort of pushes them to the left."

"But I don't think there are many who are FAR left," Cronkite added. "I think a little left of center probably is correct."

That judgment precisely confirms what a great many conservatives have been saying for years. There are exceptions, of course, for many broadcasters and newsmen have no more ideology than so many bullfrogs on a log. I grew up under a couple of managing editors who were not obsessed with politics; they were obsessed with golf. But Cronkite's generalization, in my own observation, is an honest appraisal.

Why is it so? Why is it that so few persons who are politically "right of center" make it to the highest levels of the media? Part of the answer, I suspect, lies in the ideological influence of our institutions of higher learning; part lies in a built-in system of job inheritance; and part lies in the nature of the breed.

The young man or woman who aspires to a career in journalism almost certainly will get his education — indoctrination may be a better word — under professors who are themselves "a little left of center." If these professors are attractive and persuasive teachers, and most of them are, the political coloration rubs off. Once the ambitious young journalist begins to climb within the profession, he finds rapport with fellow liberals on the next higher rung, and he becomes a natural inheritor to jobs that open up.

Beyond these tangible considerations is a quality of mind, or a cast of thinking. It is a fair generalization, I believe, that liberals tend to design houses, conservatives to build them. The liberal mind, by and large, moves more quickly than the conservative's to original thought. Those of us on the right tend to stand by tradition, precedent, and the old ways of doing things; those on the left are more impatient to get on with the job. It is natural and inevitable that restless, innovative minds will find an outlet for their ideas and energies in the entrancing channels of the media.

Cronkite's candid acknowledgement of this "little left of center" should not be taken as any confession of deliberate bias in the production of network news. It is "absolutely mad," he says, to suggest that any such willful policy line exists. I agree. But Cronkite's limpid honesty supports my own conviction that editorial judgments on the great networks, because they are human judgments, subtly and unconsciously reflect the political liberalism of the men and women who make those judgments. And that's the way it is on TV in May, 1973.

Shortage of food worldwide

By RAY CROMLEY
NEA News Analyst

WASHINGTON — A worldwide shortage of grain, meat and assorted other foodstuffs will make it exceedingly difficult for President Nixon to bring inflation under steady control in the year just ahead.

Cromley

Mounting worldwide price inflation in some key raw materials this country must import in increasing amounts — such as petroleum — adds to Mr. Nixon's problems.

These are pressures, it will be noted, which no president can bring under control.

Supply and demand have their ups and downs, making some temporary price slowdowns, or even dips, possible (some experts say quite likely). But the long-range trend is up, and much more sharply than in the historic past though perhaps not so rapidly as in the last two years.

Last year's worldwide grain failures virtually exhausted reserve stocks. The international crop outlook at this time appears better for this year. But without reserve supplies, the grain-shortage countries are not likely to take chances. This caution, if nothing else, will likely serve to hold prices at high levels.

The world hunger for meat, exemplifed by the rapid increases in demand in Japan, the Soviet Union and elsewhere, plus the growing appetite for beef in this country, keeps the heat on the prices for beef, pork, mutton and all protein foods generally. (Thus the increased demand for soybeans, for example.)

The Middle East countries have learned that by banding together they can get more — and more — for their oil. Add the growing energy scarcities in the United States and it becomes crystal clear that the driving force in oil and gas prices will be steadily upward through this decade.

Then there is the worldwide pressure amont workmen for higher pay. In a growing number of nations wage rates have been moving up with unprecedented speed for the last five to eight years. These increased payments to workmen, however much deserved, will certainly force higher prices for the raw materials this country buys abroad.

This American vulnerability results, of course, from the growing U.S. dependence on overseas sources for a long list of materials. Today, this country imports almost 30 per cent of its oil and gas, a third of its iron ore, 87 per cent of its bauxite and alumina, all of its chromium, two-thirds of its mercury, almost all of its manganese, plus major amounts of a range of other raw materials.

We can halt power waste

Our country has been very wasteful in the use of our natural resources. Take electricity for an example. There are so many electrical things that we can do without. Electric toothbrushes, electric hair curlers, electric hedge trimmers and electric knives are just a few.

There are many things that we could do to help stop the problem. Some people have their lights on all the time, even in the daytime when they could easily pull up their shades and let the sunshine in. Some people have their TV's and radios on while no one is around to watch or listen. Things like that help to create a power shortage.

Electricity is just one resource that we are using wastefully. There are many others. Why don't WE help to stop this!

"Why Can't Nixon Keep a Spic-and-Span Office Like We Do?"

Merry-go-round

Anti-press deeds louder than words

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — A contrite President Nixon told newsmen on April 30: "Continue to give me hell when you think I'm wrong." One week later, the Justice Department indicted Boston Globe reporter Tom Oliphant for accompanying a mercy mission, which attempted to drop food and medicine to the besieged Indians at Wounded Knee, S.D.

This appears to be a continuation of the relentless assault upon the press by the government at the same time that the President's communications aide, Herb Klein, is assuring influential editors: "We want a new relationship with the press."

Never in the nation's 200-year history has there been such a campaign of jailing, tailing, tapping, harassment and vituperation against reporters. Oliphant's mistreatment is merely the latest in a series of incidents.

Under the U.S. Constitution, newsmen are supposed to be free to pursue the news wherever they can find it. They have gone into enemy territory in time of war; they have taken great personal risks to keep the public informed.

In this spirit, the 27-year-old Oliphant covered the preparations for a three-plane mercy drop to the Indian militants. Then he went along on the flight and nearly lost his life in an accident. He wrote two exclusive stories about the event.

But Oliphant writes for the Boston Globe, a newspaper which displeases the White House. FBI agents, under orders from Justice Department representatives, obtained a warrant for his arrest.

First, they broke into his former home near Boston early in the morning and terrified the occupants who were still in bed. The FBI squad departed in confusion after discovering they had pounced upon the wrong house.

Oliphant, meanwhile, learned the FBI had located his new home in Washington and was preparing to descend upon it. While his wife and three children waited apprehensively, he rode a bus downtown and turned himself in.

On the basis of information from an informer whom some of the prosecutors now doubt, a federal grand jury was prodded by the Justice Department to indict Oliphant. The charge: he allegedly conspired to promote a "riot" by raining food and medicine on the Indians at Wounded Knee.

The key allegation against him is that he "had in his possession $10,000 for use in obtaining aircraft and food, medicine and other supplies..." The truth is that the newsman left to accompany the mission on such short notice that he had only eight dollars in his pocket and a credit card.

Yet Oliphant faces 15 years in prison if the Justice Department can find a jury to convict him. This is unlikely, since the prosecutors will have a hard time finding 12 American citizens who will convict a newsman for reporting the news.

The Nixon administration tried to nail my associate Les Whitten on a similar charge. FBI agents handcuffed and jailed him while he was reporting on the return of Indian documents to the government. In Whitten's case, the grand jury refused to believe the FBI and the Justice Department dismissed the charges.

Yet Oliphant was indicted even though the U.S. attorney for South Dakota, William Clayton, a GOP politician and ex-county prosecutor, had never even read his stories. In our talk with Clayton, he said it would be "improper" for him to say whether he pushed through an indictment under pressure from Washington.

FBI, JR. — Antipoverty czar Howard Phillips, who has been blocked by the courts from dismantling his own agency, has turned it, meanwhile, into a miniature FBI to spy on the poor.

His chief inspector is Eric Biddle, an ex-CIA man, who has surrounded himself with former professional snoops from the FBI, CIA, Army intelligence and police security squads.

Our own spies have shown us the confidential personnel forms of seven "consultants," known irreverently inside the agency as the Magnificent Seven, who helped Biddle guide his two dozen inspectors. This small force, like the seven who oversaw them, is loaded with ex-FBI types.

Meet the Magnificent Seven:

✓ RAY MCCONNON: He served more than 13 weeks with the CIA as an intelligence analyst, also did investigative work for the House Internal Security Committee. On his data sheet, Biddle wrote: "Investigative experience is necessary for this work. Subject has requisite investigative experience." Despite Biddle's confidence in him, McConnon proved to be such an embarrassment on his first assignment to Louisville, Ky., that his consultant job was terminated immediately upon his return to Washington. He created an incident, say our sources, over the discovery of an Angela Davis poster taped to an employe's wall. McConnon would tell us only: "I have no squawk. There was no racist incident."

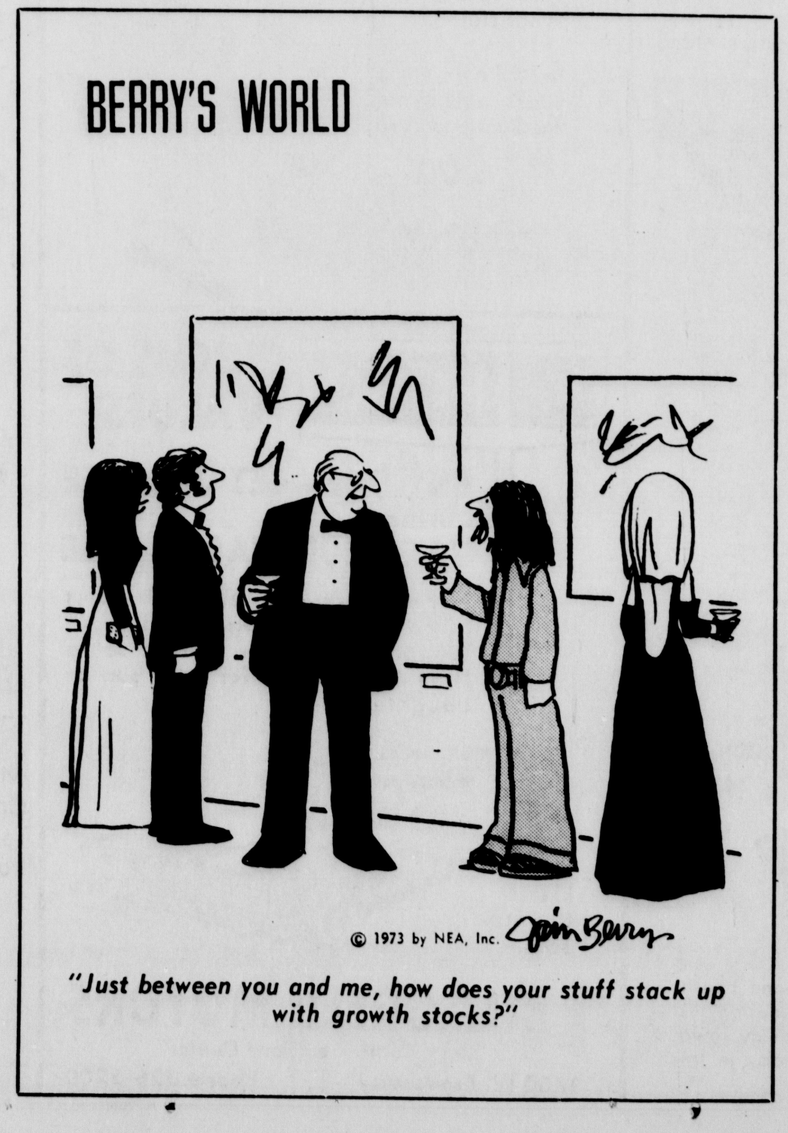

✓ PETER SPALDING: Until last January, he was engaged in "planning, briefing and coordination of investigations with the FBI and the CIA" for Army intelligence.

✓ EARL MORGAN: In the early 1950s he "directed activities of employes in the fields of counterespionage, countersubversion, personnel security investigations and security and surveys and inspections." From 1965 to 1972, he worked in Army counterintelligence.

✓ GERALD CRAWFORD: He put in over 20 years in Army intelligence handling "security investigations, counterintelligence services and sensitive classified operations." He recently quit the government to take an investigative job in New Jersey.

✓ RENE FRANCAZI: He had "over 30 years experience as an investigator" for Army intelligence, retired as a full colonel in 1970. He has now left the antipoverty agency.

✓ THOMAS FITZPATRICK and ROBERT HILDENBRANDT: Both are ex-police supersleuths from California. Fitzpatrick was director of intelligence for the San Francisco Police Department; Hildenbrandt was Modoc County's chief deputy sheriff in charge of investigations.

"Just between you and me, how does your stuff stack up with growth stocks?"

Girl Scout Controversy

Muriel Lehman, president of the Philadelphia chapter of the Girl Scouts of America, shows the proposed cover of a new booklet for a new merit badge, tentatively named "To Be a Woman." The new badge has caused a controversy with the local Catholic Archdiocese which says the requirements for the badge "raise serious questions and dangers." The merit badge makes mention of visiting planned parenthood organizations and discusses sex education. According to Mrs. Lehman, the badge's emphasis is on the woman's role in society. (UPI)

Plans Appeal Of Legalized Abortion

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Atty. Gen. John C. Danforth said Monday he's going to the U.S. Supreme Court to appeal a ruling that makes abortions legal in Missouri.

A three-judge federal court ruled last Friday the Missouri anti-abortion law is unconstitutional because it conflicts with a Supreme Court ruling earlier this year.

Danforth said the appeal will be based on his contention that an unborn child is human life and should be protected by the state. The high court did not resolve the question of when life begins in ruling that abortions were permissible in the first three months of pregnancy.

"I attempted to present medical evidence to the three-judge federal district court in Kansas City that an unborn child is in fact human life at the time an abortion is performed, and that it is not simply a potential human life," the attorney general said.

"We will argue that the district court was in error in holding that the state does not have a compelling interest in protecting the life of an unborn child," he said.

The Friday decision came in a Missouri case filed by physicians, clergymen and two married women who said the state law restricted their rights in the practice of medicine, counseling and family planning.

The federal court ordered that no prosecutions be made under the state law.

Asked if his appeal could be viewed as a delaying tactic, Danforth said: "I think it's unethical and improper for any lawyer to use the courts as a delaying action. I honestly think this is a sound legal point which I am obligated to raise."

In St. Louis, Mayor John Poelker said abortions will not be performed in the city-operated hospitals.

"Just because the courts say doctors no longer violate the law by performing abortions does not mean the city has to provide them," said Poelker.

BUSINESS NEWS

The Sedalia Board of Realtors, in its monthly meeting Thursday, discussed the group's participation in Realtor Week, which began Sunday and ends this Saturday.

In other action, Hank Monsees, president of the organization, appointed Darryl Swaim secretary-treasurer. He also reported that the "Realtors to Save Amtrak" program is gaining more support each week and that it was conceivable that Amtrak service in Missouri might be granted a one-year extension rather than being terminated.

Attempts to confirm similar reports with Amtrak officials last week revealed that Amtrak was not aware of the one-year extension plan for the Kansas City-New York trains. It was learned only that a Senate committee is now studying a budget proposal and that any decision concerning Amtrak would have to await the final outcome of budget hearings.

Teacher Irritated With Indifference

Dear Ann Landers: This is the time of year when parents become annoyed because they have just learned that their child will not pass to the next grade. As a first grade teacher, many youngsters come to me with no kindergarten. They are very immature. Their parents have been told this but when they hear that their youngster will be retained they become angry and say they had no idea the child wasn't "keeping up."

I am writing not because I am irritated with the parents but because I want a better break for the children. I've had parents refuse to take a child for an eye exam when everything pointed to a vision problem. The same goes for children who are hard of hearing. (The mother says, "He's just lazy. Shake him — or punish him.")

One child cried in school every day. The poor thing had a mouth full of rotten teeth. When I phoned her mother she said, "They are only baby teeth. They'll fall out pretty soon."

Another little girl smelled so bad that no one wanted to sit next to her. She was not taught to take a daily bath. Her clothes reeked with perspiration. When I notified her mother, she called me a liar — accused me of not liking the child, and threatened to report me to the principal.

This is not a ghetto school. These are not welfare children. They are from middle-class families who don't care. Please, Ann, give us teachers a hand. Perhaps, if it comes from you, the parents will listen. — L. H. In Orlando

Dear L.H.: Here's "the hand." What some of those parents need is a foot — kicking them in the direction of a counselor. Such indifference suggests incredible ignorance. They need professional guidance.

Dear Ann Landers: I agree with you that when bright and interesting people get together, it is not uncommon (or rude) for them to interrupt one another. This makes for lively conversation.

But what about the bores who interrupt just because they want the floor? We have such a person in our office. No matter what the topic, even when no one is talking to her, she butts in and takes over. More than once she has derailed a fascinating story to mouth some nonsense about her husband or her dog.

How does one silence such a clattertrap? — Bugged In Boise

Dear Bugged: There IS a way. The minute she opens her mouth — open yours. Say, "Please don't interrupt Bill. We're all fascinated with his story!" If you are determined, there's no way she can get in there with her husband and her dog.

Dear Ann Landers: Regarding that young man who didn't know how to tell his fiancee her neck was dirty: You said it could be her jewelry. Another possibility is a skin pigmentation problem. I know because I have it. It used to be embarrassing when people stared at my neck. I knew they were wondering why I didn't wash it. I was tempted to say, "Look, it's a skin defect," but in recent years I've become accustomed to it and it doesn't bother me.

Please inform your readers not to jump to conclusions. A discolored neck doesn't necessarily mean the girl doesn't care for soap and water. — High Collar Henrietta

Dear Hen: Right you are. In fact there's a two-bit word for that skin problem. It is "poikiloderma." (Some of my best friends are dermatologists.)

Train Collision Killed One

WEBSTER GROVES, Mo. (AP) — One man was killed and three others injured Monday when a Missouri Pacific Railroad freight train ran into the rear of a stopped coal train here.

Officials said J.A. Ferguson, 42, of O'Fallon, Mo., died about two hours after the collision in a residential-commercial section of this St. Louis suburb. Ferguson was the front brakeman on the freight train.

The engineer of the train, George Williamson, 53, of St. Louis, was seriously injured in the collision and two other men, who were in the caboose of the coal train, were treated for less serious injuries.

The cause of the collision was unknown.

Eight cars of an Illinois Central and Gulf freight were derailed Monday near Alton, Ill., causing some concern when one of the derailed cars was found to be leaking flammable liquid phosphorous fertilizer. Emergency fire crews were on the scene for five hours after the collision, until the leak was stopped. A spokesman for the railroad said an investigation would be held to determine the cause of the derailment.

Media Makes Them

Superstar By Any Other Name Would Smack Just As Many Home Runs

By IRA BERKOW
NEA Sports Editor

NEW YORK (NEA) — Just when the word "superstar" finally attained official lexicographical status, it became obsolete.

The recently published "Webster's New Collegiate Dictionary" vainly tries to define the word, the first time it appears in a dictionary in relation to sports.

A superstar is "a star who is considered extremely talented, has great public appeal, and who can usually command a high salary," says the esteemed but fence-straddling lexicon.

The assumption is that there is no brighter star than a superstar in the entire sweaty firmament of sports.

Yet virtually on the day of dictionary publication, New York News columnist Dick Young writes about Willie Mays: "Superstar is not enough word to describe (him) in this inflated time, when superlatives are thrown around like adjectives on old movie posters. Everybody who has ever hit a ball out of a ballpark is introduced as a superstar. For Willie Mays, there has to be a better word." Young chooses "super-duper star."

This is, incidentally, the same philological Young who once said that "Ron Swoboda was the first superstar of the Mets. In those days, a superstar was anybody who could put his baseball shoes on without spiking himself."

So-called "new" words aren't always new. And superstar has been in growing usage for at least a decade (Merriam-Webster's first sports citation for the word is from 1963). A dictionary patiently waits to see if today's superword isn't indeed forgotten tomorrow.

The word superstar has quietly, quickly crept into our sports vocabulary and is new snugly burrowed in our colloquial woodwork. We find now that everyone from Jesus Christ (in a rock opera) to Viva (the title of this underground actress's autobiography is "Superstar") to Vida Blue (President Nixon said that Blue was the most underpaid superstar) has been cloaked with the mantle of glittering hyperbole.

In the more pinched world of sport, the word "superstar" is spread with equally far-flung abandon. Going through Merriam-Webster's citations, one reads that Bill Hartack (from a Sports Illustrated story in 1963) to Andy Bathgate and Tucker Frederickson and Red Berenson and Walt Hazzard, and Mickey Mantle, Johnny Unitas, Oscar Robertson, among many others, have been called superstars in print in the last 10 years.

The dictionary definition is a study in muddledom. It says first that a superstar must be "extremely talented."

Not so, says Johnny Bench, acidly: "I thought that everyone who plays in New York is a superstar."

Bill Bradley explains: "Players don't make superstars. The media makes superstars. The media is concentrated in New York and Los Angeles."

Howard Cosell, the voluble sportscaster, adds, "A superstar is not necessarily one whose performance in the arena merits such a title.

"Arnold Palmer has become a superstar because of television, because of how he comes across on the screen. There are actually several golfers who are better than Palmer. But when he's playing on television one notices the cut of his jaw, the lock of boyish hair, the handkerchief poking out of his back pocket, the casual discharge of cigarettes — it's like watching Humphrey Bogart putt. Very exciting. Obviously a superstar."

"Great public appeal" is the dictionary's second point, and Cosell gives a graphic example of it in Palmer's case. Yet "extremely talented" athletes (such as the golfers who are superior today to Palmer) may not have such pyrotechnical attributes.

Only recently, for example, has Henry Aaron been discovered. "People ask me where I've been for the first 15 years of my career," he said. Just a couple years ago Aaron was almost turned away from a Cincinnati hotel, then the All-Star game headquarters, because the registering clerk had never heard of him. "Are you perhaps with another party?" the clerk asked.

The third and final dictionary attribute for superstar is "usually command a high salary." What is a high salary? Obviously Vida Blue and Charlie Finley have differing views. Wilt Chamberlain makes a quarter of a million dollars, but Johnny Bench makes only half as much. Is Bench only half a superstar?

Sports people have more questions and criteria for the word. Sonny Werblin, former New York Jets owner, says, "A superstar sells tickets. Charisma's the thing. Joe Namath is unquestionably a superstar. But Dick Butkus isn't."

And a question, once a superstar always a superstar? Tom Seaver thinks so. "There's no going back once you reach it. Like a retired general retains his title. So does a superstar such as Willie Mays."

Dr. Paul Weiss, author of "Sport: A Philosophic Inquiry," said, "One can lose superstar status. One of the sad things is that we live in an ephemeral world. There is always a new wave on the way."

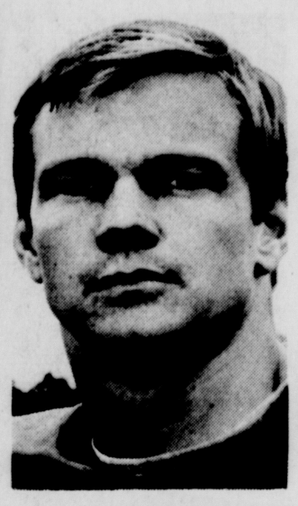

But what next for "superstar": Will it be usurped by some new hula-hoop of a hoopla word? King-size stars? Family-size? Colossal, as in olives? Megastar? Super nova? "Super-duper"? ("Super-superstar" was in fact used by Sports Illustrated in a 1967 reference to Babe Ruth.)

An entire galaxy of possibilities is suggested in "The American Thesaurus of Slang." A few are: "superblobslopcious, superbogsnoptious, superscrumdifferous, spanglorious, immensical, grandacious."

Or, of course, "super" as a prefix can be extended to an infinite power, "super-super-super-super-super-super—" etc.

Sham Given Belmont Go-Ahead

NEW YORK (AP) — When Secretariat goes after the Triple Crown in the Belmont Stakes June 9, his main challenger once again will be Sham, trainer Frank "Pancho" Martin confirmed Monday.

"He came out of the race just fine and his next race will be the Belmont," Martin said of Sham, runnerup to Secretariat in the Kentucky and the Preakness, each time by 2½ lengths.

After Saturday's Preakness, Martin had indicated Sham would skip the Belmont, saying: "I have no plans for the horse, including the Belmont."

But the trainer said he and owner Sigmond Sommer have decided to start Sham in the 1½-mile Belmont, longest of the Triple Crown races, because the colt had problems in the Derby and Preakness and they wanted to give him another chance.

In the Derby Sham hit his head in the starting gate and loosened two teeth, which had to be cut out, but still broke two minutes in finishing second to Secretariat, who ran the 1¼ miles in a record 1:59 2-5.

Then, in the Preakness, Sham hit the rail going into the first turn.

"It's tough enough to beat a horse like Secretariat without having trouble," said Martin. "I want to see him in a race like the Belmont with plenty of room."

Sham is scheduled to take it easy this week and then begin serious preparation for the Belmont.

Secretariat's trainer, Lucien Laurin, also said his Meadow Stable colt will relax at Belmont Park this week, then get to work for his bid to become thoroughbred racing's first Triple Crown winner since Citation a quarter of a century ago.

"He came out of the Preakness raring to go again," said Laurin.

Laurin also was informed Monday that Pimlico stewards had officially adjusted Secretariat's time of 1:55, third fastest for the 1 3-16 Preakness, to 1:54 2-5, making it the second fastest. Canonero II set the record of 1:54 in 1971.

Laurin said "the change leaves me cold because it still doesn't give me the record," but added he wasn't too upset because the victory was what really counted.

Group Will Study Health in Sports

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A group of doctors, athletes and team owners announced Monday the formation of the National Athletic Health Institute, Inc., to probe such problems as drugs in sports and "tennis elbow."

The non-profit corporation was formally launched at a news conference at which Edgar M. Gillenwaters, vice president, said, "We're not out to study illnesses that cause death; we seek funds to make living more productive."

Gillenwaters, a former California director of commerce, said the institute, incorporated last November, will serve as a national clearing house for sports medicine and research. He said it is designed to help prevent injuries and improve care for the weekend tennis player or golfer, the young ballplayer and the high school, college and professional athlete.

"The need is critical," Gillenwaters said, noting that an estimated 17 million Americans were injured last year taking part in sports and recreation.

The institute is headed by Dr. Frank W. Jobe, president, and Dr. Robert K. Kerlan, medical director. They are associates in orthopedic practice in Inglewood, Calif., where the institute is headquartered at Centinela Valley Community Hospital.

A sports medicine library is planned as well as fellowships for laboratory research.

Dr. Kerlan, asked if the institute has taken a stand on drug usage, said, "Usage of drugs has been well-publicized. But there has been no objective research done. We do know that using drugs purely for stimulation is nonbeneficial."

One of the institute's priorities, he said, is a study of painkilling drugs used by athletes.

Picked as Coach

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Ed Temple, coach of the women's track team at Tennessee State University, has again been selected on the U.S. Olympic Track Committee for the 1976 games.

Need Playoff To Win SCC Tournament

The team of Earl Finley, Lee Bock, Bill Labus, Jr. and Bill Hopkins captured Sunday's Sedalia Country Club Men's Hollywood Golf Tournament winning a playoff over two other teams.

The winning squad, which was deadlocked with their 64 with two other teams after regulation, won in a one-hole playoff, with a birdie three.

The team of Lou Tempel, John Hays, John Weller and Neil Chapman finished second with a par four on the first extra hole.

Third went to the Gentry Patterson, Gordon Childers, Jim Menefee and Pete Holloway team, which bogied the playoff hole.

The Van Dyne Memorial Invitational Golf Tournament is the next event scheduled at the Sedalia Country Club, Saturday. The next club event is a member-guest tourney, June 10.

Flat Creek Gains Entry Into Championship Tilt

Flat Creek has come through the losers' bracket of the Harmony Baptist Association's Pre-Season Softball Tournament and is scheduled to meet Nazarene tonight for the championship.

Flat Creek made it to the finals by defeating LaMonte, 3-0, on a three-hit shutout by Bill Boatman Monday night.

LaMonte topped Maplewood, 21-1 for the right to take on Flat Creek, after Maplewood came from behind to down New Hope, 10-9, in Monday night's opener.

Nazarene, which defeated Flat Creek in the winners' bracket semifinals last week to gain entry into the championship game, can wrap up the tourney title with a win over Flat Creek in tonight's 8 p.m. contest. However, a win by Flat Creek would force a 9:30 p.m. game in the double-elimination competition.

Roger Eastep of LaMonte picked up the 21-1 decision over Maplewood, but was the losing pitcher against Boatman.

Bob Calvert was the winning pitcher for Maplewood, while Homan Williams was the loser in relief in Monday night's opener.

WCC Winners

Ruby Allen and Lavonne Labahn won Monday's ladies day blind partner competition at Westmoreland Country Club.

WCC ladies were scheduled to be guests of the Whiteman Air Force Base Country Club ladies Tuesday.

Sports Hearings Underway Today

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Commerce Committee began hearings Tuesday into problems surrounding amateur sports organizations in the United States.

The committee, under the chairmanship of Sen. John V. Tunney (D-Calif.), will study four bills that would fundamentally alter the official structure of U.S. amateur sports.

The measures address themselves to the Olympic program, the possible need for a national sports development fund and the practicality of a federal sports commission that might resolve the dispute between the Amateur Athletic Union and the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

Among witnesses scheduled to testify during the three days of hearings are Bill Toomey, Harold Connolly, Suzie Chaffee, Donna De Varona and Tom McMillen, all former Olympians; sportscaster Howard Cosell; representatives of the N.C.A.A. and A.A.U., and Rep. Ralph Metcalfe (D-Ill.), a member of the 1932 and 1936 U.S. Olympic track teams.

Sawed Off by Carlton Pitch

Pittsburgh's Rich Hebner breaks his bat after swinging at a Steve Carlton pitch in the fourth inning of Monday night's game in Philadelphia. The Bucs defeated the Phillies, 5-4.

Hargis Lone Local Qualifier To Make Cut

(Democrat-Capital Service)

KANSAS CITY, Kan. — Lew Hargis, club professional at the Sedalia Country Club, has qualified for the United States Open sectional with his 145 Monday at Indian Hills Country Club.

Hargis, who qualified for the sectional two years ago, nearly eliminated himself with his six-over 76 in Monday's opening round.

"I three-putted three greens and hit one out of bounds," Hargis said Tuesday morning, "Other than that, I felt like I played pretty well..."

However, he carded a second-round total of 69, which tied him for the second best score of the day. His 145 total put him four shots behind medalist Sandy Scharlau of Meadowbrook Country Club, but it was good enough to qualify him for the June 4 sectional round, which is also scheduled for Indian Hills.

The other four Sedalia entries missed the 10-man sectional cut. They included Jim Hatfield, Westmoreland Country Club pro (148); Bob McFerren, club pro at Walnut Hills Country Club (149); Monte Bradley, a pro who was playing out of Westmoreland (157); and Gene Smith, ex-assistant pro at Walnut Hills who shot an 80 in the first round and did not compete in the second round.

This is Hargis fourth time to qualify for the sectional. He failed in his previous attempt to make it to the U.S. Open, which this year will be played near Pittsburgh, June 14-17.

Hargis' second round Monday was a complete turnabout from his first 18 holes; he hit 17 of the 18 second-round greens in regulation.

When asked how he felt his game was at the present time, Hargis replied, "I feel like I'm playing well ... real well ... I only hope it continues."

In addition to Scharlau and Hargis, others who qualified for the sectional were Mark Phillips, Topeka, 142; Stan Thirsk, Kansas City, 144; amateur Bill Ludwig, Blue Springs, 144; Bob Nieberding, Kansas City, 144; as well as Charles Lewis, Kansas City; amateur Brent Buckman, Kansas City; Tony Peterson, Kansas City; and Garey McClure, Kansas City. All came in at 146.

Injured Driver Returns Home

TALLADEGA, Ala. (AP) — Veteran stock car driver Wendell Scott, injured in the May 6 Winston 500 at Alabama International Motor Speedway, has been transferred from a hospital here to one in his hometown of Danville, Va.

Doctors said Scott's condition was fair and that they expect him to be able to return to competition in three months.

Before leaving for Danville, Scott, 51, said he hoped to be able to make his comeback in the Talladega 500 Aug. 12.

He suffered four broken ribs, a broken pelvis, fractures of both legs and severe cuts on the left arm as the result of a 21-car pileup.

Horse Racing Dates Changed

TRENTON, N.J. (AP) — The New Jersey Racing Commission has announced changes in racing dates at Atlantic City and Monmouth Park race tracks, designed to eliminate racing during the Labor Day weekend at Monmouth Park.

The commission's original plan called for racing at both tracks on the holiday weekend.

Weaver Requests Jury Trial

TOWSON, Md. (AP) — Manager Earl Weaver of the Baltimore Orioles, who sometimes becomes volatile when confronting baseball umpires, stood mute Monday before a different type of arbiter in Baltimore County District Court.

Weaver listened as Judge William J. Hinkel explained his options — something umpires seldom do — and then, through his attorney, Russell J. White, requested a jury trial.

Weaver is charged with operating a motor vehicle while intoxicated, failing to drive in a single lane and malicious destruction of property.

Judge Hinkle said because the maximum penalty for driving while intoxicated is $1,000 or one year in prison or both Weaver had the option of being tried in his court or before a jury.

After White announced the defense decision Judge Hinkle said the case would be heard by a Circuit Court jury. The date was not immediately set.

The Orioles' manager was arrested on the Baltimore Beltway in the early morning hours of April 16, several hours after the team returned from a road trip.

According to state police, Trooper James C. Slocum stopped Weaver's car after spotting it weaving from lane to lane. After giving the officer information, police said, Weaver opened the door of the police car with such force that the hinges were sprung and the right front fender was damaged.

Weaver was then handcuffed and taken to a court, where he was released on $500 bond pending his hearing yesterday.

Police said handcuffing is normal for transporting arresting persons on the Beltway. They said Weaver did not resist but described him as "very abusive."

Shortly after the arrest Weaver said he had been met by his wife at Baltimore's Friendship International Airport about 10:45 p.m. April 15. He said they arrived at a restaurant owned by Bill Pellington, a former Baltimore Colts football player, and left about 1:30 a.m.

Pellington appeared in court yesterday along with Mrs. Weaver and George Staller and Jim Frey, Orioles coaches.

Indiana Issues Showdown Challenge to LA Lakers

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The Indiana Pacers, champion of the American Basketball Association, Monday challenged the Los Angeles Lakers to a post-season showdown.

The Pacers issued the same challenge to the New York Knicks, who dethroned the Lakers in the N.B.A. final this year, but the Knicks declined.

The offer from John Weissert, Pacer vice-president and general manager, came after Jerry West, N.B.A. all-pro, was reported in Charleston, W. Va., to have said there is no comparison between rival leagues.

Los Angeles also turned down the Pacers. "The 1972-73 season is over," said Pete Newell, the L.A. general manager. "We've disbanded and have no intention of playing Indiana or anyone else."

Responding to West's assessment, Weissert said: "I understand his problem as our champion Indiana Pacers didn't challenge his No. 2 Los Angeles Lakers. We challenged the New York Knicks because they're winners. Unfortunately, they declined to play us, so I guess we would play Los Angeles if they feel up to it."

Weissert said the Pacers would have everything to lose and nothing to gain playing a runner-up.

"If Jerry and his teammates decline," Weissert said, "I guess they can continue to make unsupported claims and probably a few will still believe them. If they accept, we'll be ready."

Back Surgery For Chip Glass

CLEVELAND (AP) — Charles (Chip) Glass, Cleveland Brown tight end, underwent surgery Tuesday to correct a back problem.

The operation for a herniated lumbar disc could jeopardize Glass's chances for regular-season play this fall. The operation is the same type Milt Morin, the team's regular tight end, underwent in 1969. Morin played that fall.

Southern Hockey League in 6 Cities

ATLANTA (AP) — The board of governors of the newly organized Southern Hockey League Monday announced the league will operate with six franchises in 1973-74 and play its first game Oct. 12.

The six franchises will be in Charlotte, N.C.; Greensboro, N.C.; Winston-Salem, N.C.; Roanoke Valley, Va.; St. Petersburg, Fla., and Macon, Ga., or Hampton, Va.

The league is an offshoot of the Eastern Hockey League, which folded after the Southern teams pulled out to form the new league.

Ashe Eyes Revenge

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Arthur Ashe of Miami, Fla., hopes for revenge at the French National Tennis Championships this week against fellow-Floridian Brian Gottfried, who beat him decisively in the final of the $150,000 Alan King Caesars Palace Tennis Classic, Sunday.

Bruins, Celts Announce Plans for New Arena

BOSTON (AP) — The owners of Boston's professional basketball and hockey teams have agreed to build a $20 million sports arena in the South Station area, according to the Boston Redevelopment Authority.

The agreement to build the 18,000-seat arena will be signed "early this week, probably Tuesday," according to BRA Director Robert T. Kenney.

The building will be financed by Storer Broadcasting Corp., owner of the Bruins of the National Hockey League, and Robert Schmertz, owner of the Celtics of the National Basketball League, and the Whalers of the World Hockey Association.

Kenney said construction should begin "the latter part of this year or the early part of the next" and be finished by early 1976.

Negotiations on building the arena had been in progress for more than a year but were stalmated until two weeks ago, Kenney said.

Kenney said Boston Garden, where the teams now play, will be used mostly by high school and college teams.

Don Conner Takes Over Lead

ODESSA — Don Conner's victory in Sunday's I-70 Speedway late model stock car feature has netted him the season's point lead.

Conner, Shawnee Mission, Kan., grabbed the checker in the 25-lap event and wrestled the points lead away from Dave Wall, Kansas City, Kan., who suffered a fractured shoulder in an accident during the program.

Conner, the 1972 late model division champion, has now amassed 746 points; Wall trails in second with 685.

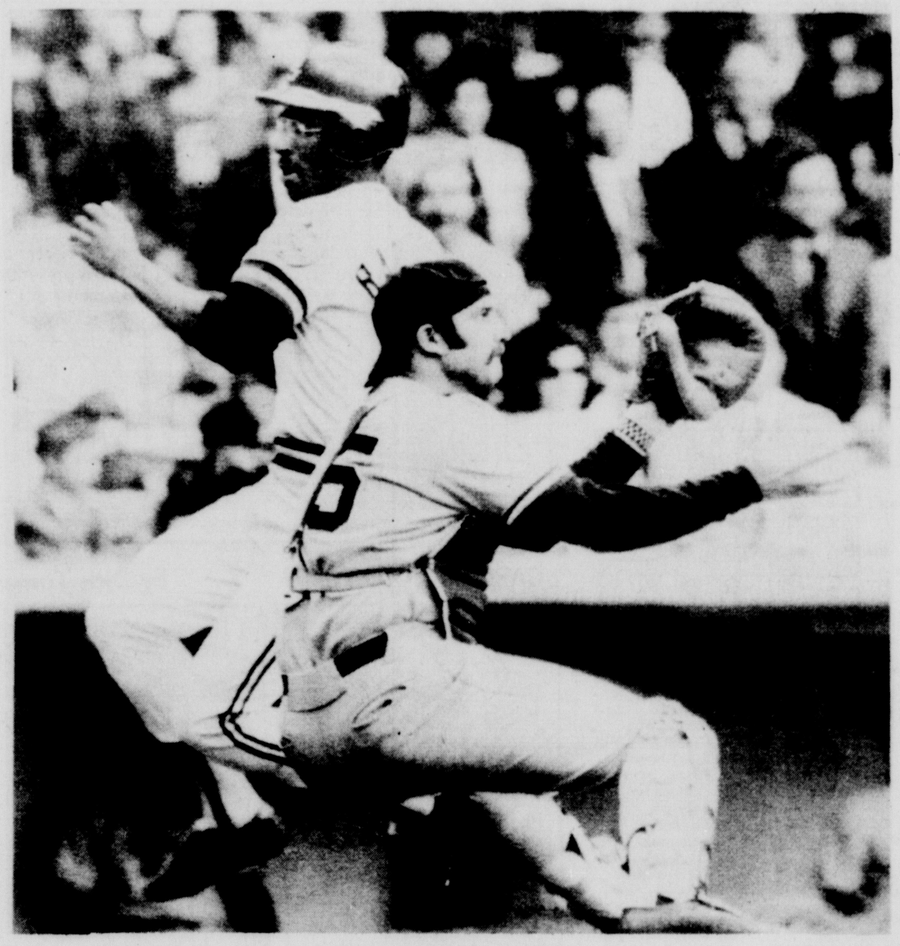

In the hobby stock division, Wayne Smith, Harrisonville, leads Charles Buchanan, Independence, 843-675. Roger Arnhart, Kansas City, Kan., has a wide lead over current runner-up Jerry Arthur, Kansas City, in the mini-stock class (975-623).

Ragland Beats Throw

Cleveland's Tom Ragland scores from second base on a single by Buddy Bell to center field as the throw from New York's Bobby Murcer to catcher Thurman Munson was too late to cut down the runner. The action took place in the second inning of Monday's game in Cleveland; the Tribe won the game, 10-5.

Senate Proposes Size Increase of 8,000

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House sent to the Senate Monday a bill to increase the seating capacity of Robert F. Kennedy Stadium here by 8,000 seats.

The stadium, home of the Washington Redskins football team, now has a seating capacity of 53,000 for football games. It is operated by the District of Columbia Armory Board.

The bill, passed by roll-call vote of 270-98, would require that 50 per cent of the revenue resulting from the added seats be used to pay for the installation costs. Until the entire cost has been paid the National Football League and visiting teams would not receive their usual share of fate receipts from use of the 8,000 seats.

Hartsfield Hired As Hawaii Manager

HONOLULU (AP) — Ray Hartsfield, a coach for the Atlanta Braves, has been named manager of the Hawaii Islanders of the Pacific Coast League.

Hartsfield, 47, signed a two-year contract.

Hartsfield won pennants at Albuquerque in 1965 and Spokane in 1967 and 1968.

He replaces Rocky Bridges, who was fired last week. Bridges guided the Islanders to a 74-74 record in his two years.

Weather Could Hamper Derby

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — The Wichita-to-Kansas City leg of the second Smirnoff Sailplane Derby was scheduled to be flown today, weather permitting.

Four of the six pilots made it from Liberal, Kan., to Wichita Monday after being delayed a day because of unfavorable wind conditions.

The race leader, Ray Gimmey of Sacramento, Calif., failed to make it all the way, landing about 15 miles northwest of Wichita.

Betsy Howell of Oak Brook, Ill., landed somewhere between here and Liberal. Race officials said she landed safely, but did not know just where.

First to land at Wichita Monday was W. K. Woods of Hawaii, who covered the 212-mile distance in 3 hours, 55 minutes. Second was Wallace Scott of Odessa, Tex.; third was Goran Ax, reigning sailplane world champion from Sweden, and fourth was John Ryan of Phoenix, Ariz.

Not Enough Facilities in Orlando

Move Baseball Meetings to Houston

HOUSTON (AP) — The annual major league baseball winter meeting has been moved from Orlando, Fla., to Houston, Commissioner Bowie Kuhn announced Monday.

Kuhn said officials could not acquire enough facilities in Orlando and the meeting was changed to Houston, which originally was set for the 1975 winter meeting.

The 1974 winter meeting will be in New Orleans and the 1975 site is now undetermined.

Kuhn said within the next 10 years he can foresee such advances in major league baseball as inter-league play and an international World Series.

"The Japanese are making excellent progress," he said. "You might see an international all-star game before that time."

Kuhn said the closeness of the major league division races is something that is here to stay.

"I don't think you'll see any more of the old Yankee and Dodger combination of old," Kuhn said. "You're going to see more races like this year."

We feel sure that most car owners are aware of the importance of preventative maintenance as far as their cars are concerned. A tune-up . . . a check-up . . . body repair when the rust first sets in will pay big dividends in the long run. A car is a comparatively large investment. It's well to protect it. That's why we suggest that you take it to your favorite garage or service station or back home to the new car dealer where you purchased it for regular service and check-ups.

Opening lead—♥ K

By Oswald & James Jacoby

South's two-club opening was artificial and forcing. North's two diamond response denied an ace, king or two queens. South decided to gamble for game anyway.

He ruffed the king of hearts lead and promptly ran off all his trumps in the hope that East and West would discard badly. They didn't and South could only get to nine tricks.

"Nice defense," said South. "I wish I had bid three no-trump."

He would have made that contract easily but he also should have made four spades. It was a matter of failing to see the forest on account of all the trees.

He should have seen that the 10-nine-seven of trumps represented three entries to dummy and that the queen-10-nine of hearts could be made into his 10th trick.

Then he should have been careful to ruff the heart with a high trump. A low trump to the seven would put him in dummy. He would lead the nine of hearts and discard a low card. The three of diamonds as an example.

West would be in and might lead a club. South would win with the ace; enter dummy with the nine of trumps; lead the 10 of hearts and discard the deuce of clubs.

West would be in with the ace and lead a second club. South would lose that trick, but ruff the next; enter dummy again and discard his last loser on the queen of hearts.

Rev. Hackney Ousted From Committee

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Rev. James Hackney says his removal from the Missouri Baptists' Executive Committee was a result of his criticism of the committee's policies.

The Missouri Baptist Convention Board ousted Hackney from the committee in a closed session here Monday.

Hackney said his opposition to some of the committee's policies also brought on the action.

A recent audit of the committee's action showed they had overspent in their budgeting, sometimes without authorization.

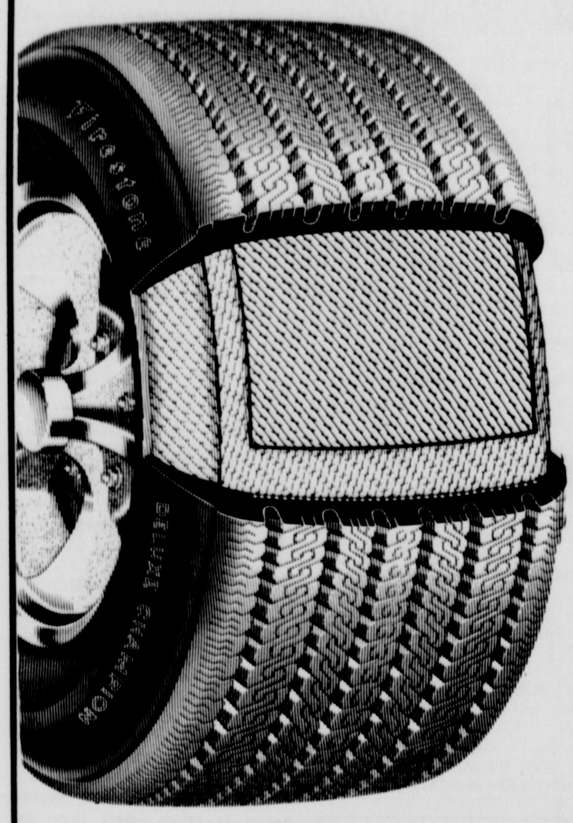

The executive committee administers funds for the Baptist group, which has a current budget of $5.6 million and a membership of about 533,000.

The audit also said cash control procedures were inadequate and the minutes of meetings were unsigned.

Hackney said, after his outster, there are enough indications, including the audit, to raise questions about the conventions's financial actions and its present financial status.

Blind Display Sculptures

GREENVALE, N.Y. (AP) — The sculptur on display at C.W. Post College this week is very special. The pieces, from face masks to life-sized human figures, are all by blind students.

The exhibition is composed of the work of five sightless students who recently completed a unique art course at the college taught by Andrew Cartier, an avant-garde painter and art educator.

Cartier, who is pursuing doctoral studies at Columbia University, developed the three-credit course to "expand means for the blind person to engage in creative arts" as a doctoral dissertation proposal.

The course proposal enabled C.W. Post to fulfill several requests from its blind students for art clasees. There are approximately 18 blind students on campus here.

"I was also struck by the beauty of Cartier's thesis," said Arnold Simonoff, chairman of the art department, "that the creative notions come from the student and not from the instructor."

At the beginning of the past semester Cartier's students worked with cast stone, a plaster-like powder which is mixed with water and hardens as it dries. The students made face masks by pressing tin foil to their own faces and then pouring the cast stone into the mold.

Later, the students worked with store manneguins to create plaster casts of bodies and limbs. The finished sculptures included a woman holding a child, a couple embracing and a woman seated in a chair.

"Blind or not, human beings need to express themselves creatively. The basis of art is seeing imagery emerge from one's experiences," Cartier said. "Sculpture, therefore, becomes a natural outlet for the creative thinking of blind persons. They can identify through feel and touch with what they are creating."

No Evidence Anyone Had Medical Records

By TERRY GANEY
Associated Press Writer

ST. LOUIS (AP) — "I have no whit of evidence that my medical records were in someone else's hands," Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton, last election's Democratic vice presidential candidate, said Monday.

He was referring to newspaper reports which said records of Eagleton's medical history had been in the possession of John D. Erlichman, former presidential aide. The recent reports, part of the series of disclosures following the Watergate burglary, said Erlichman had the Missouri Democrat's medical files before word of his shock treatments was leaked in the 1972 election campaign.

"I have no evidence that the White House or any other government agency had my medical records. I have been told by the FBI that they did not have the file," Eagleton said.

Eagleton resigned as Sen. George S. McGovern's vice presidential running mate Aug. 31, 1972, after he disclosed that he underwent electric shock treatments for depression and nervous exhaustion.

Asked about the reliability of the newspaper reports, the junior senator said he was not in a position to judge the reporters' investigations.

"I see no reason for his (President Nixon's) resignation or impeachment. There's no hard, compelling evidence linking him to the break-in or the coverup," Eagleton, 42, said.

The attention being given to the Watergate disclosures is "making the job of government more difficult," he said.

"It's increasingly more difficult to get answers to routine questions," he said.

Eagleton said it was too early to tell if the Watergate scandal would affect the 1974 and 1976 elections.

Asked if he felt betrayed by reports of political espionage against Democratic candidates seeking the party's presidential nomination last summer, he said, "I don't feel betrayed. I feel deeply, deeply saddened."

He made his comments during a joint news conference here with former Missouri Gov. Warren E. Hearnes.

Hearnes said he feared the "disillusionment" that Watergate might cause among people, particularly young persons, who were contemplating entering political life.

Eagleton said he felt the appointment of Archibald Cox, a 61-year-old Harvard law professor, as the government prosecutor in the case would "clear the air."

Dump Truck Driver Crushed to Death

PHILADELPHIA, Mo. (AP) — William F. Denish, 53, was crushed to death Monday when he was pinned between the bed and the frame of a dump truck he was unloading.

Police said Denish was unloading gravel on a farm about six miles north of here when the accident occurred.

Philadelphia is about 25 miles north of Hannibal.

Says Religious Affiliations Not Involved

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Mayor John Poelker Monday denied that his religious affiliations were a factor in his decision not to provide abortion services in the city's hospitals. The mayor is a Catholic.

"It doesn't have anything to do with it," said Poelker. "There are non-Catholics, even atheists, who are opposed to abortion. It's an individual matter."

Poelker said the ruling by a federal court Friday in Kansas City meant only that the state could not prohibit abortions. He said the ruling did not say that the city must provide them.

The two city hospitals are not currently prepared to provide the abortion service, the mayor said, and the hospitals will not receive authorization to make the necessary preparations.

The mayor said he would meet with city health and legal officials later in the week to discuss the abortion question.

The Coast Guard says 30 per cent of all boating accidents are caused by hunters and fishermen.

HOW T.B.S. BALANCES TIRES.....
T.B.S. Tire Balancing Seal employs the age-old principle of centrifugal force (CF= MRW²). When out-of-balance condition exists on a rolling tire, the axle center moves toward the out-of-balance condition. This movement is echoed throughout the vehicle in the form of vibration. This movement also creates a long radius on the back side or light side of the tire and rim. The movable fluid and suspended solid solution of T.B.S. automatically seeks this long radius on the light side. In placing itself in this position, it counter-balances the original out-of-balance position. Whether this out-of-balance condition be static or dynamic, if it affects the axle position, T.B.S. will react against it by positioning itself. T.B.S. is to be inserted through valve stem into air chamber of tube-type or tubeless tires, and then simply go on your way.
